FUND MANAGER'S REVIEW, OUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

United States Treasury (UST) yields declined in February as investors weighed the prospect of Trump's trade policies on global growth. The 25% tariff on imports from Canada and Mexico will be enforced on March 4th, in addition to a doubling of the 10% universal tariff charged on imports from China. Trump also plans to impose 25% tariffs on autos, semiconductors, and pharmaceutical as early as April 2nd. January's Personal Consumption Expenditure (PCE) price index rose 2.5%, easing slightly from 2.6% in December 2024, in line with markets' expectations. Meanwhile, according to the Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) January's meeting minutes, the Federal Reserve (Fed) officials agreed that inflation would need to come off further before they could consider cutting interest rates again. The 10-year UST yield declined 34 basis points (bps) to 4.24%. Local government bonds ended only slightly firmer with the 10-year Malaysian Government Securities (MGS) and Government Investment Issues (GI) both closed 1bp lower at 3.79% and 3.81% respectively.

Malaysia's economy grew 5% year-on-year in Q4 2024, surpassing initial estimates of 4.8% but slowing from an upwardly revised 5.4% in the previous quarter. Annual inflation rate stood at 1.7% in January, holding steady for the second straight month and matching market forecasts. Core inflation increased 1.8% from 1.6% in December 2024.

In February 2025, U.S. equity indices declined due to underperformance in major tech stocks, concerns over elevated inflation, and weaker consumer spending. Uncertainty around the Fed policy and signs of a slowing economy, including falling home prices, further weighed on investor sentiment, causing U.S. markets to underperform compared to global equities. European equities rose driven by optimism over a potential ceasefire in Ukraine and strong performance in financial and defence sectors. Asean equities performed mixed with Chinese equities, including those in Hong Kong and Shanghai, performed strongly, fueled by China's pro-growth policies, including fiscal and monetary stimulus, and government measures to stabilize the real estate and capital markets. Additionally, the rise of AI-driven companies like DeepSeek boosted sentiment, particularly in the tech sector.

The Bursa Malaysia index series delivered mixed performance, with the FTSE Bursa Malaysia KLCI (FBM KLCI) recording a modest gain of 1.14%, while other indices posted negative returns. The positive performance of the FBM KLCI was primarily driven by the resilience of large-cap stocks, which outperformed mid- and small-cap indices during the month. However, broader market sentiment was weighed down by cautious foreign investors activity, influenced by concerns over elevated U.S. inflation and the Fed's decision to hold interest rates. Despite Malaysia's strong economic fundamentals i.e. robust Gross Domestic Product (GDP) growth and healthy Foreign Direct Investment (FDI), these external headwinds limited the overall performance.

On the fixed income market, we expect major central banks to continue cutting interest rates over the next 12 months although Bank Negara Malaysia is expected to keep the Overnight Policy Rate steady in the near term. Given this outlook, we remain constructive on local sukuk market. Meanwhile, our dynamic Shariah-compliant equity investment strategy adapts to market volatility by focusing on fundamentally strong companies and actively managing our portfolio based on market trends and economic indicators to optimize returns and mitigate risk.

Note:

Based on the Fund's portfolio returns as at 10 March 2025, the Volatility Factor (VF) for this Fund is 13.1 and is classified as "High". The VF means there is a possibility for the Fund in generating an upside return or downside return around this VF. The Volatility Class (VC) is assigned by Lipper based on quintile ranks of VF for qualified Funds. VF is subject to monthly revision and VC will be revised every six months. The Fund's portfolio may have changed since this date and there is no guarantee that the Fund will continue to have the same VF or VC in the future. Presently, only Funds launched in the market for at least 36 months will display the VF and its VC.
