FUND MANAGER'S REVIEW

The FBMS Index was up by 2.20% due to improving market sentiment driven by strong rebound in Dow Jones Index as well as Nasdaq Index during the month. The fund's NAV had increased by 4.29% on month-on-month and outperformed its benchmark by 2.90% due to better performance of its growth oriented stocks during the month.

Meanwhile, Malaysia's GDP performance is expected to continue its strong performance with inbound tourists to continue record high arrivals for the remaining part of 2022. Overall, the fund will continue to invest in growth-oriented stocks to position for better NAV recovery in relation to its new financial year, particularly as technology stocks in Malaysia appears to be stabilizing and poised for recovery in share price once the interest rates upcycle near its tail end. Tactically, the fund had also increased its exposure in the technology space by acquiring good quality stocks anchored by flagship growth stocks such as MPI Bhd, D&O Greentech, Dnex Bhd, and Frontken Corp Bhd by way of exiting non-performing economic re-opening stocks where share price continued to disappoint.
