

BIMB i FLEXI FUND

FUND MANAGER'S REVIEW

The FBMS Index was up by 4.74% in February driven by Index linked plantation stocks as the sudden invasion of Ukraine by Russia had sparked a strong rally in CPO price surging to above RM6000/t due to supply disruption on global vegetable oil as well as rallies on other commodity products. The fund's performance had decreased by 4.12% on 1-month basis as technology and industrials stocks prices declined sharply due unfavourable equity market conditions caused by the war mentioned above.

As Malaysia's trade volume with Ukraine and Russia are not significant, the war between the two countries is not expected to have a big negative impact to Malaysia's export industry. Higher CPO price is also good for domestic spending and demand, therefore the fund will maintain its investments in Technology sector for longer term growth prospects but are also looking to invest in property and consumer sector stocks that stands to benefit from high CPO price with less ESG concerns as compared to the plantation industry.
