FUND MANAGER'S REVIEW

The FBMS Index was down by 7.45% month-on-month as the sharp 75bps rate hike by the US Fed to 3.25% and sharp fall in the US stock market had negatively affected the local stock market sentiment. The Fund's NAV had decreased by 2.92% on month-on-month basis but outperformed its benchmark by 1.47% due to better performance of its Industrial and growth-oriented stocks during the month.

Meanwhile, Malaysia's GDP performance continue to show encouraging performance with 2Q 2022 GDP growth registering a strong 8.9% YoY growth benefiting from the full re-opening of its economy since April onwards. Overall, the Fund will maintain its investments in growth-oriented stocks to position for better NAV recovery as technology stocks in Malaysia is set to benefit from global semiconductor growth in the EV and smart device segment. A successful revamp of its stock mix had also resulted in better Lipper rankings for the Fund in end September. Therefore, should technology stocks stage a strong rebound in the future, we are optimistic that the Fund's NAV will continue to grow strongly riding on the EV evolution replacing traditional carbon fuel cars globally.
